Our Guides . . .

the Laws of God and Country

Our Catholic liberal education well prepares us for citizenship in an American democracy. We believe our lives involve both a spiritual and a material realm. We have searched for and have found an education that has prepared us to take our place as a citizen of the here and now and of hereafter. We propose to show in this yearbook how St. Ursula Academy achieves this aim. We chart here the spiritual, moral, social, and educational forces which have helped to form in us a public sense of values. We show the influence in our lives of the basic tenets of the Divine and Natural Law, an observance of the Moral Law, as found in the Ten Commandments, and the primacy which the Constitution of the United States holds in our lives as citizens. Treating of the proximate and more tangible obligations, we include our own handbook, the Academy Arrow, and the Constitution of the St. Ursula Student Council.

An aerial photograph of the St. Ursula Academy campus, showing several large, light-colored buildings with multiple windows and a central courtyard area with trees. The image is in black and white, with a slightly grainy texture.

In view of the fact that our class will be the last to graduate from this present site, the staff of the 1959 SCROLL thought it most fitting to honor the almost twenty-five hundred girls who have gone before, by making them the subject of this dedication. The decision was the nucleus that brought forth these fruits of research: from the sole graduate of 1873 to one hundred forty-two by 1905, when the Academy changed residence from the original location on Cherry Street to Collingwood Boulevard. The Class of 1906, the first to graduate from the present building, was then succeeded by fifty-three classes, including the Class of 1959. Paging through this silhouette, you will see that time has made no difference in the basic philosophy of St. Ursula Academy. You will see that we are being trained, as were you, in true Christian citizenship to recognize God as the cornerstone of American democracy. We have learned here, as citizens of two worlds, that faith in God and loyalty to our country's laws go hand in hand. In dedicating this book to its eighty-six sister classes, the Class of 1959 feels it is becoming a part of the past in passing on the tradition of an academic training which serves this function and reaches into Eternity.

Sister Miriam

St. Ursula Academy operates under the capable leadership of Sister Miriam, principal, and twenty-seven faculty members

When appraising a school for its promotion of the Christian and democratic values, the public gives much credit to the competency of its administration. Sister Miriam, in her fourth year as principal, holds a Master's Degree from Marquette University and has done graduate work at Catholic University of America and the University of Detroit. With a lifetime of experience both in teaching and in administration, Sister is richly qualified to set the pace by which the educational and cultural life of the Academy should advance. May she have many more successful years in leading youth to make the right choices for successful Christian living in a democracy.

Our Graduates:

A required course for all Seniors, American Government engenders a deeper understanding and appreciation of the universal Christian principles upon which the Constitution of the United States is based. Government comes easier, we learn, to those with a spiritual background, because we acknowledge the necessity of self-discipline. We can see the importance of our duties in the breath-taking challenge of shaping the future policy in this Land of the Free. Freedom, we are taught, demands a dedication, as the Father of Our Country so well said "Let us raise a standard to which the wise and the honest can repair." Truly good advice for all loyal Americans.

Citizens of Two Worlds . . .

Monopolizing everyone's attention, Sharon creates a tantalizing mathematical problem for seniors on y—what is the sum of a pair of spectator pumps, one white uniform, one peated collar, two cuffs, and a long stemmed red rose? The proud answer given by Sue, Christine, Barbara, Dorothy, and Peggy is—Commencement! And then to find new worlds to conquer!

We anticipate our eternal commencement

the course to our destination.

Arriving at the hotel after an all-night train ride, we see Jeanne relaxing on her cot in the middle of the room. Margaret and Martin are warmly talking to her. Nancy and Nancy are taking a peek at the schedule mapped out for them during their stay in Washington. It proved to be quite complete.

As we come to the end of our four years, we realize that fidelity to the laws of God and our country will inject into our lives real purpose with which to traverse life's highway.

Our Classes:

But we know there is a Higher Law than the Constitution. Instruction based on the Supreme Law gives us a sense of values which is ultimately more important than mere facts. Our Book of Knowledge consists of Two Tablets of Stone upon which are inscribed in brief simplicity the minimum requirements of justice and charity we owe to God and our fellowmen. The Ten Commandments concisely chart our plan of action. God the Source of all our rights and liberties created us intelligent beings with the rights, duties, and privileges of our state. All we need is good will to drink at the Fountain of Wisdom.

Who posed the question that brought the seriousness depicted here? No matter. Father McCartin will answer it. Juniors and seniors find many such occasions in their religion classes where the instructor presents the matter of the respective courses in the give-and-take manner of apologetics with seniors in the firing line.

Don't the major reasons for the "feminist" approach to the study of the family lie in the fact that women have written the literature and that the family is a male-dominated institution? I think not. The literature of the family is a very broad field, and it is not only women who have written about it. The survey of English literature, with a steady diet of reading, composition, and grammar composes the seniors' dish. The Christian Impact in English, in the first, second, and third-year courses, affords a wide study of the art forms in poetry, short story, essay, novel, drama, and biography. Discipline in the application of functional grammar and exercise in creative writing are an integral part of the entire course. Reading maketh a full man." These words of Francis Bacon summarize the purpose of the St Ursula Academy Library. A storehouse of knowledge, it is the very core of a student's academic life. For the individual seeking facts on a pertinent topic or for the senior completing the bibliography of her research essay, it becomes a blessed place of refuge. The person who loves literature may enter a land of enchantment by simply signing her name to a card. The Library possesses a unique ability; it serves every need, every interest, every ideal. It is capable of molding the SUA student into a complete, well rounded personality.

When you visit the library, you will find a wide variety of books, magazines, and newspapers. You will also find a comfortable place to sit and read.

How many of you have ever taken part in a letter writing contest? The library has a special section for you.

Under the direction of Sister M. Clarence, the History Department of St. Ursula Academy stresses citizenship

Appreciation of our rights as citizens begins with an appreciation of the people who made them possible. In our country, this includes people from many lands. In their study of World History, freshmen gain this appreciation through the study of the backgrounds of these countries. The study of American History brings to juniors the knowledge and appreciation of our own country's birth and development. The seniors apply their background of history to the study of American Government. This course also includes a study of current history, for the good citizen is, above all, well informed in this modern world

As the interest in science continues to mount and the scientific race among the world powers is rocketing, the Academy can be proud of its science department. The physics and chemistry students realize, through their course study, that thinking is not just a word, but a logical sequence of ideas that must be developed. The biology department excels in its study of human, plant, and animal life. The future of the United States lies in its scientific knowledge and St. Ursula's is helping to further it.

Mathematics in our day will carry us to the moon. With this thought, the freshman attacks the mysteries of Algebra I by striving to master the basic fundamentals and skills of Math. The sophomore, armed with protractor, compass, and ruler, sets out to prove the validity of the axioms and theorems in the study of Plane Geometry, which comprises the year's course.

In the language classes the origins and growth of human thought, religion, literature form the groundwork, together with the technical aspects. Such knowledge affords an understanding of the problems which have always plagued human nature—problems basically the same as those of our atomic age. We may understand, through the study of languages, the familial, municipal, national, and international societies of which we are a part. These seniors, Jeanne English, Jane Westhoven, Barbara Kowalski, and Barbara Pim, seem none the worse for their four-year Latin course concerning the renowned Virgil.

Communication is a sensation of many forms, the most common being speech. Budding Ciceros learn to develop the faculty to a higher degree. Communication can be experienced also in music. Concentration upon physical progress perfects in its own sphere the whole man and superimposes an element of enjoyment upon growth and skill. Volleyball, basketball, archery, and shuffleboard emphasize team play and cooperation, for the thrill of the game is a prelude to the attained ability of harmony in all relations. The spirit of cooperation which has made our country great is embodied in athletic endeavors. The feeling of team play and loyalties to a cause are both found therein. A well-balanced program not only satisfies the student's natural desire for sport, but it also fosters unity and fellowship in the student body. Mrs. Harry Overberg applies these principles in her underclass gym sessions. Upperclassmen participate through the Athletic Association.

Watch out! Arrows are flying around campus from the mighty bows of gym class students. Sue Engel, Renee Early, Kay Macelwane, and Carol Pawlowicz demonstrate the form which won for them the archery contest. Four of our thirty-seven "robin hoods" received the accolade "best shots." Under the watchful eye of Mrs. Overberg, athletic director, the girls hit the mark.

The prestige and success of a team is dependent upon two things of equal rank: first upon the ability and determination of its members, and second, upon the knowledge of its instructor. The excellence of these two qualities at St. Croix has made intramural games a bond which closely knits the friendship between the classes.

Here shuffleboard enthusiasts Patricia Farley, Kay Macelwane, Marcia Thibodeau, and Sharon Moriarty display their skill at discarding for the benefit of their admirers on the sidelines. Margaret Mann, Carolyn Kregg, Lois Zimmerman, and Barbara Cross.

Our Underclasses:

The Academy Arrow is the guidebook of the St Ursula Academy student. Abiding by its rules, regulations, and traditions, we prepare in a practical way for citizenship in a larger community. It is the nature of youth to look forward to the future with confidence and enthusiasm. The safeguards provided by the school as found in the Arrow afford that confidence we experience when we know what the law does and does not allow. We realize through reference to the guidebook that to promote the common good, the individual must practice legitimate restraints to promote harmony within the group

Our activities:

Through the Student Council Constitution, which coordinates the extracurricular life of the Academy, we have numerous opportunities to participate in various democratic procedures. Here we see employed the leadership necessary to exercise that important duty and privilege which constitute citizenship in a democracy, self-government. Devotion to duty and dedication to high ideals are the virtues we look for in our leaders. It is a distinct privilege to aid the administration and faculty—a privilege that must be safeguarded, a blossom on the tree of student liberty. And the strong qualities developed by participation will become a part of our personality and character for life promoting as it does the common good.

St. Ursula's Day sets the Keynote for . .

Through various religious activities the Ursuline girl becomes spiritually educated as well as mentally and physically. On St. Ursula Day, the students attend Mass and a breakfast where the life of St. Ursula is read and talks are given.

The Apostleship of Prayer sponsors the dedication to the Sacred Heart and encourages the girls to have their families and homes consecrated through the Enthronement ceremony.

The Legion of Mary meets once a week to strive through prayer and discussion to implant the Marylike virtues in the souls of the members.

The Young Christian Students, a newly formed group, deals mainly with discussions of a religious nature.

St. Ursula Day was the theme of the assembly of the S.S.A. celebrated the feast of their patron saint, St. Ursula, the virgin and martyr. The assembly was held at the Ursuline Academy, St. Ursula's Day, and the theme was St. Ursula.

Reflect . . . Repent . . . Resolve . . . The three R's of the spiritual life replaced the three R's of school life during the annual Day of Recollection and the Retreat. SUA, realizing the importance of developing all phases of the Ursuline woman, affords every spiritual opportunity possible to the girls. One of the main ways to raise money each year is the sale of Christmas cards and paper. Here Rebecca St. John, Paulette Connell, and Helen Matthews display their wares.

The Missions at St. Ursula's is a very vital part of every student's life. Being one of the major clubs in the school, the entire student body is enrolled in it. The membership dues are sent to the Propagation of the Faith which helps the foreign missions as well as those in the United States. The annual events sponsored by the Missions are the sale of Christmas paper and cards, the Christmas Post Office, and the monthly mite box collections.

The Paladin Club, composed of underclassmen, is the study club of the Missions. The objective is to read and discuss mission news and the work of the Missions in various countries.

The Science Club includes members from all science classes taught at St. Ursula's biology, chemistry, and physics. Most of the projects of this group are an outgrowth of class work. Effort reaches its culmination in the preparation of projects for entry in the annual Science Fair.

A diploma in music is achieved after fulfilling requirements set by the Ursuline School of Music among which are at least eight years of music instruction, including special classes in music theory and music appreciation. This year's class of four is one of the largest in years.

The "Twelfth of Never" theme set the tone and carried on the tradition of St. Ursula Academy proms since 1943, when the first affair of the kind was inaugurated by the Juniors of that year.

Plans entirely in the hands of the Junior Class were expertly arranged under the chairmanship of officers Sally Hayward, Karen Karfas, Sharon Higgins, Barbara Joyce and Committees.

ushers in the Junior-Senior Prom . . .

One of the major highlights of the senior year is the long-awaited trip to our nation's Capital. After weeks of saving, and days of planning, we are finally ready to entrain for the famous place. Last minute preparations and sudden recollections of things to be done add to the excitement. Anticipation of what the morrow is to bring keeps one alert and active. At last the time arrives. Jane Westhoven, Mary Lou Buyakie, and Mollie Bogey make sure they will have something on hand to help speed away the time.

With Washington past

While the Sisters are busy with final arrangements, the girls chat with their friends. Barbara Keweenaw and Josephine Yappell engage in conversation with Earl, mother and tiny sister, whereas Mollie Bogey and her friends stand waiting for "something to happen." Soon the trip will be an exciting reality and then a happy time to remember.

Chapel, veils, heels, and cherry blossom are the order of the day. The annual May procession is filing into the chapel accompanied by aching feet and the not too harmonious singing of the student body, despite the valiant efforts of the attending nuns and upperclassmen.

Accompanied by the popular voice of the Senior Class, Barbara K. W. and her friends, the students watch as Queen Mary L. B. is crowned.

May in a very special way is Mary's month, when Catholics the world over proclaim her Queen of the Universe. All classes at St. Ursula's honor Our Lady by keeping her altars in the respective homerooms decked with votive lamps and flowers. Many of the girls make an effort to hear Mass daily and say her rosary. As a fitting climax to Mary's beautiful month, the entire student body marches in procession to her shrine in Sacred Heart Chapel to crown her Queen of the Angels and Queen of the May.

Oh, to be a winner! Whether it's the Scroll, World's Finest Chocolate, or the Magazine Drive, it's great to be on top. Sharon Higgins, Dianne Wolfe, Paula Trepinski, Nancy Koehler, Jeanne Christie, Cathy Link, Sharon Moriarity, and Mary Moore were top salesmen in the various drives mentioned.

Nancy (who seems more interested in Choco than in the cameraman) was high salesman in the yearbook drive, netting the grand total of 500 dollars. Jeanne ranked first in selling over 300 bars of chocolate. Paula, first in the magazine drive, sold over 175 dollars worth of subscriptions.

we say "thank you" to all our friends.

On the right, at the end of Open House, when parents and teachers meet to talk about things over. Here, Sister [name] is in the receiving line, a parent, watching her.

The Academy joined the Parent-Teacher Organization of the school, meeting three times a year in October, February, and May when a planned program is presented.

Glass
Has Made A Difference

Now is the time to reflect upon the "good ole' days" in school—the many friends, your favorite teachers, sports and dances and parties. But when looking at today's school architecture, we think you'll agree that glass has made a difference!

Here's picture-proof that school corridors don't have to be dark and dreary tunnels. No longer must walls be solid and opaque. Today, more attention is being paid to daylight and view.

When reflecting upon the advantages of this glass age, we think you'll agree that the "good new days" are better.

And Now

And now to the Future! Although the graduates of 1959 can never realize the dream fulfillment, they can enjoy the anticipation. Happy days lie ahead for the smiling lassies of St. Ursula Academy at the new location on Indian Road. Kay Wakelin, Sheila Hannon, Sharon Higgins, Kathleen Coffman, Sally Hayward, Paula Trepinski, and Nancy Koehler have just met the eye-gladdening and heartlifting sight of the promise of a new school being fulfilled

Blueprints point the way to . . .

Nuns walk along the corridor of the soon-to-be new school, much as they will do in the near future

All signs point to the coming of a new building. Reverend Mother breaks ground on a lovely summer day

An eager faculty eyes the groundwork of the long anticipated much-needed new building which will soon take on a more covered aspect
